Dear Parents/Carers,

During World Book Day earlier this month, all of our children were involved in a caption competition for photographs of various members of Norwood staff 'extreme reading'. These included adults reading on the roof of cars (safety first, as always!), reading in the dark by torch light, and in the arms of a rather large gorilla.

The children found these images hilarious, and the resulting captions were very clever. We were able to highlight reading for pleasure, and how fun it can actually be, as well as exposing children to the fact that adults read as well!

As a direct result of this, we would like to create an 'extreme reading' display in our school library, showcasing all of the amazing and unusual places that you can read. The Easter holidays seem an ideal opportunity for this, so if you are happy for your child to take part, please take a photograph of your child reading in an unusual place, and bring a printed copy in to your child's class teacher (no photographs sent via email please, and we thank you for supporting us with this). These will then be displayed in the school library and shared during a whole school assembly.

If you are happy for your child's photo to also appear on the school website, please inform your child's class teacher.

Could any photographs that you take please be with your child's class teacher by Friday 15th April 2016.

Thank you, and enjoy extreme reading!
